

HITLER FIGHTS FOR GERMAN MONROE DOCTRINE

'Mistaken Identity,' U. S. Navy Says

Man, 79, Petitions To Have His Estate Restored by Court
Thomas Qualteri Declares He Gave Away Between $30,000 and $35,000 in Ignorance
Says He's Destitute
Would Examine LeRoy Gill Who Drew Up Papers of Transfer

Thomas Qualteri, 79 years old, seeks to have restored to him an estate of between $30,000 and $35,000 which he once gave to his two sons. The estate included some $22,000 in cash and real estate and securities. He claims that when he gave away his property to Anthony and Michael Qualteri he did not understand what he was doing and that now he is absolutely without means of supporting himself and is compelled to seek aid from members of his family.

The matter came up in special term Friday before Justice Schirick and on an application of plaintiff to examine certain people before trial. Paul Rosen appeared for the petitioner and H. LeRoy Gill, Hon. George F. Kaufman and William H. Grogan appeared in opposition.

Mr. Qualteri suffered a stroke several years ago and in addition it was stated he does not speak English and cannot read. The action to recover the property is brought on the grounds of fraud and deceit. There are some 27 defendants in the action, some of whom do not appear by counsel.

The aged man through his attorney asked to examine H. LeRoy Gill, attorney who drew the transfer papers, and who witnessed the transfer as well as others present at the time of the transfer.

The aged man, claiming he is destitute, claims he did not know he had transferred his cash to his two sons until he went to a bank and attempted to draw out cash and was told he had given away all his money.

Counsel seeks to examine the two sons and Mr. Gill as to what took place at the time of the transfer and on other matters.

George F. Kaufman opposed the examination and called it a "fishing expedition" to ascertain what the defendant's testimony would be on trial.

Mr. Kaufman said there were several circumstances in regard to the matter. Counsel for the aged man sought to gain the sympathy of the courts but he said the facts were far different that set up by the aged man.

Mrs. Qualteri and her sons once operated a store at East Kingston and the sons worked and "put their money in a common family pot" and Mr. Kaufman said this was a part of the money now involved in the action.

Mr. Qualteri at the time of her death made many bequests but did not have an estate to care for them. Mrs. Qualteri had an actual estate of $1,906.88 when she died but her will provided for payment of over $9,000 in bequests. Mr. Kaufman said Mr. Qualteri had made much the same kind of a will after his wife's death.

He said that will was drawn after due consideration and he said the transfer of the property to the two sons had been made at the request of Mr. Qualteri after due consideration, nothing had been done on the spur of the moment. His action had been on the advice of counsel, an Italian attorney having been in the case.

Mr. Rosen said that at the time of the transfer of the property and the witness to the act in the office of Mr. Gill, some of the talk was in Italian and some in English, and Qualteri did not understand English well. He said to clear up the matter the examination before trial should be had. Decision was reserved.

Printing 'Mess' Over
New York, March 2 (AP)—New York city's "printing" contract mess has been cleaned up through cooperation of the industry itself, says Mayor LaGuardia. On Thursday, the city struck 12 firms from the list of qualified bidders for city printing after an investigation uncovered evidence that the city had been victimized by collusive bidders.

Joe's in 'Frisco'
San Francisco, March 2 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, the belting Yankee outfielder, still was in town today instead of being enroute to Florida for spring training—and he doesn't mind being called a hold-out. "I don't call myself a hold-out," Joe said, "but if that's what you wish to call it, it's all right. I won't leave San Francisco until I hear from him." (Ed Barrow, Yankee president.)

Five Persons Perish In Apartment Fire; Pyromaniac Hunted

Worcester, Mass., March 2 (AP)—Four women and a man perished early today in a three-alarm blaze which destroyed an apartment building here.

Firemen struggled for two hours before bringing the towering flames under control so bodies could be taken from the top floor. A few moments later the roof collapsed.

The dead were identified as the Misses Tora A. Jean E. and Rena D. Nordstrom, sisters widely known in central Massachusetts as musicians; Miss Anna H. Hydock and George D. Thompson, Worcester.

State Fire Inspector James A. Traynor said there was "every indication the fire was set."

Three previous incendiary fires occurred in the same block last month and police began a hunt for a pyromaniac.

Finns Said to Be Burning Viipuri; Reds in Outskirts

Russian Losses Continue Heavy, Finns Declare; Official February Report Given

Helsinki, March 2 (AP)—The Red army hammered loudly today at the gates of Viipuri, with battle raging in the outskirts of that shell-ravaged city which is the key to the Karelian Isthmus.

(A Soviet communique said the Finns were burning the city as they fell back and that the Russians already were in the southern suburbs.)

The Finns themselves acknowledged that after three months of war, including a month of sustained assault against this objective, the Russians were moving on Viipuri from the south and east by land and from the southwest over the island-dotted ice of Viipuri Bay.

Russian losses continued to be heavy, the Finns said, in fighting along the entire isthmus front from the edge of Viipuri on the west to the fortress of Taipale on the east. Taipale, on the Lake Ladoga shore, is holding fast despite one of the war's heaviest aerial bombardments, they said.

Official Review
An official Finnish review for February of the Russian invasion, which began November 30, continued:

"Abandoning our foremost positions is not of decisive significance in the defense system of the isthmus. In actual fact, the enemy has gained possession, after these bloody battles, which have cost him extremely dearly, of a relatively small area."

"One has every reason to ask whether the result will compensate for the sacrifices of power. . . . Many examples from military history show that similar small results gained by great efforts may in the course of time prove expensive and even downright fatal for the attacker."

(The Russian communique said that since February 11 Soviet troops had captured 922 Finnish fortifications, including 235 iron and concrete artillery forts; and that the Finns had lost 506 guns, 2,732 machine guns, 19 tanks, 20,000 shells, 10,000 rifles and more than 14,000,000 cartridges.)

Lists Towns Captured
(It listed capture yesterday of the towns of Heinjoki, Mannikkala and Tali, the southern outskirts of Viipuri, Cape Keijas-neimi on the western coast of Viipuri Bay, and the Paakkolankoski waterfall area on the Vuoksi river which roughly bisects the isthmus.)

(These positions would locate the battle lines generally from Taipale, on the east only a dozen miles from the Russian border, up the Vuoksi river to a point slightly northeast of Viipuri, and thence westward to Viipuri, which is about 50 miles from the nearest point on the Russian border.)

(The Russians said other sections were quiet, but mentioned that the air force brought down 11 Finnish planes in combat. Since February 11, the communique said, 191 Finnish planes

Nazis Also Want Lost Possessions

Peace Price Includes Political Domination Over 130,000,000 in Central Europe
Lion Must Disarm

Fuehrer Says Britain Must Drop Control of Key Points

Berlin, March 2 (AP)—Germany will fight until Britain and France recognize a "German Monroe Doctrine for Central Europe" and restore her war-lost colonies—this was described by sources who know Adolf Hitler's mind as the burden of the message he delivered today to President Roosevelt's emissary, Sumner Welles.

Another point in the message given by the Fuehrer to the American undersecretary of state in their 94-minute conference in the chancellery was understood to be that England must renounce "her stranglehold control" of the strategic lanes to the world's raw materials.

Price of Peace
Germany's price of peace, according to this version of Hitler's declaration, includes permanent German hegemony—political domination—over Bohemia-Moravia, Slovakia, Poland and Hungary, making the Reich proper a solid bloc of about 130,000,000 population.

Furthermore, it was said, he wanted guarantees that Britain and France would not stir up the Balkans or Scandinavia.

Hitler was said to have argued further that disarmament must begin by England's relinquishing military control of Gibraltar, the Suez Canal and other strategic points held in the midst of non-British territories.

Would Better Relations
Improvement of German-American relations was also declared to be most desirable, according to this version of Hitler's talk, but to be impossible so long as Washington declines to name an ambassador for the now-vacant post in the Berlin embassy.

Welles, accompanied by Alexander C. Kirk, United States charge d'affaires, both in formal clothes, entered Hitler's chancellery at 10:53 a. m. (4:53 a. m. E.S.T.)

A company of honor saluted Welles, which Nazis said was an unusual honor for one not a state visitor. At 11 o'clock the Americans began their meeting with the Nazi chieftain, who was supported by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Informed persons said the uncompromising, aggressive Fuehrer, with American illustrations ever at hand, asked Welles what the United States would do if, say, some Asiatic or European power tried to stir up trouble in Mexico. It was not disclosed whether Welles replied.

Hitler's thesis was said to be that the seas never can be considered free as long as Britain has military control of all the important trade lanes of Europe and Asia, and can at any time choke off aspiring young nations such as Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany.

In this connection, Hitler was said to have asked Welles how the United States would like for some non-American power to have control of the Panama Canal.

Psychology vs. Aggressiveness
Hitler was reported to have lived up to a reputation for adapting himself to the psychology of the person with whom he confers while at the same time defending Germany's position aggressively.

His argument was said to have run to this effect: Just as the United States, largest and most powerful nation of the western hemisphere, has assumed obligations for all of America so far as interference from European or Asiatic powers is concerned, so Germany considers it her moral obligation to see that general European living space be guaranteed once and for all from the interference of Britain and France.

Hitler reportedly insisted that German colonies be returned, and at the same time impressed on Welles that he considers Germany unbeatable economically in the war with Britain and France because of the German arrangements with the Soviet Union.

Nevertheless, he was described as emphasizing that Germany still wants her colonies as a matter of justice and as a means of enjoying life's amenities—in other words, the use of tropical products of such colonies.

Gibraltar, Malta, Singapore
On the question of disarmament, the Fuehrer's view was described reliably as being that, first, such

Request Is Made For Commissions On Water Project

Three New Groups Needed, Bright Reports; No Opposition Made Before Judge

An application was made Friday at Special Term of Supreme Court before Justice Harry E. Schirick for the appointment of commissioners of appraisal to hear claims arising out of the New York city water project.

Henry R. Bright appeared for the city of New York and asked that three commissions be appointed to hear claims in Sullivan county.

The commissions sought are for Delaware Section No. 10, Delaware Section No. 11 and the Neverson Highway Commission. The three commissions appointed to hear claims against the city arising out of the taking of lands for the new Rondout-Delaware water project.

County Attorney William G. Birmingham appeared for Sullivan county but made no opposition to the appointment of the commissions sought.

Today Justice Schirick indicated that he would not name the commissions for several days.

Freighter Is Captured
Aruba, Dutch West Indies, March 2 (AP)—The German freighter Heidelberg has been captured by a British cruiser and is being towed to Trinidad, it was reported today. The prize was the second loss for Germany's merchant fleet in this vicinity in two days. The 2,390-ton Troja having been set afire yesterday rather than surrender when intercepted by a British cruiser.

Manly 'Faint-tude'

Magazine Article Eulogizes Mother Of Former Pastor

In a recent issue of "The Foundation" appears an article written by the Rev. Philip S. Watters of White Plains, on the life of his mother, Ada Stowell Watters, wife of the Rev. Philip Malenchor Watters, who for four years served as pastor of the St. James Methodist Church in this city. Mrs. Watters died at Rajpur, India, August 8, last.

Included in the sketch of his mother's life are many interesting facts which parishioners of St. James Church were not familiar with at the time of her residence here.

Born in Peru, Massachusetts, February 28, 1862, Mrs. Watters grew up on a small Berkshire Hills farm eight miles from a railroad station. The article tells of her early life as an active church worker, member of the village choir, and later school teacher. Her desire to attend Mount Holyoke College was never attained but "her other dream of becoming the wife of a minister and living on the banks of the Hudson river" were realized when on September 3, 1885, a few months after her graduation from Union Theological Seminary, which he attended after his graduation from Amherst, she married the Rev. Philip M. Watters and went to live at Central Valley and Highland Mills and then to New York City.

From Warwick they went to Dobbs Ferry, Poughkeepsie and then to Grace Church in New York city, where "her gracious, kindly, unselfish spirit and her warm religious nature and her unusual mind won for her friendship which were treasured through her whole life."

Continuing, "The Foundation" states, "during the four years' pastorate which followed at St. James Church in Kingston, Mrs. Watters rendered an outstanding service in the teaching of a men's Bible class, which came to be a very important part of the church's life. One of those who came to this class was the young Yale graduate, Edward Carter Perkins, who became as a loved son in the Watters home and is now a medical missionary in China, where with his own private means he established and equipped a hospital."

For six years Dr. Watters was superintendent of the New York district, and then for three years again a New York pastor, this time at Washington Square. From 1915 to 1925 Dr. Watters was president of Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta. The article continues with her work among the negro ministers throughout the country and of her residence in both China and India, where her children served as missionaries. In August, 1937, she sailed for China with her daughter, Hyla, but conditions in China prevented their entry and they remained for a time at Manila and then journeyed to India, where two years later Mrs. Watters died.

The article in "The Foundation" is of more than 10 pages in length and is followed by an additional testimonial by Dr. John R. Van Pelt.

Ertel Engineering Corp. Is Asset as New Local Industry

Filtering Devices, Mixers, Tanks and Other Units Made

Plant Occupies All Space in Former Mill Street Cigar Factory Which Was Long Vacant

No word but glamour could describe the effect of a clear, sparkling libation in a glimmering glass or shiny bottle and either is the picture of pictures or dream of dreams as thirst becomes menacing.

Such have been the mirages of men with parched lips in arid lands and the refreshing "pick-me-up" to those of the ordinary work-a-day world.

Light gives lustre to the idea when the liquid is ruby or amber or any one of many other inspiring hues. Then the purity of the drink is as though on exhibit and each sip is more satisfying.

That purity is more of a requisite than ever in modern life and because of that fact Kingston recently gained an industry which shows more promise than any moving here within recent years.

Many Products Made
This new concern is the Ertel Engineering Corporation, now in the former Fitzpatrick & Draper plant on Mill street and Hasbrouck avenue which manufactures asbestos dust filters, cloth filter presses, cylinder filters, vacuum bottle fillers, bottle cappers, portable electrically driven pumps, water filters, stainless steel and glass lined tanks and portable mixers.

The industry was started by Fred J. K. Ertel about eight years ago in New York and moved to Kingston within the past year where it occupies all available space in its new quarters. Mr. Ertel, who is a mechanical engineer, began on a humble basis in a small shop on East 16th street, New York, after he had been engaged in similar work for another concern here and in Europe. He was born in the middle west and completed his early education in the public schools there. He studied later in Europe and returned to America to pursue his profession.

As an engineer and mechanical draftsman, Mr. Ertel was able to work out the ideas which are used in the manufacture of all products turned out in the plant. He secured patents for several machine units and his special methods of production are evidenced in most every phase of the industry.

Machinery Specialized
All machinery used in the plant is highly specialized and methods in the Ertel plant differ from those used by competitors.

Products of this local factory are shipped to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries, including England, France, Holland, Switzerland, Canada and the nations of South America.

In countries such as England a representative buys direct from the Ertel plant to fill orders as an individual agent. A similar policy is carried out in other nations where the products are sold. Ertel filters are used for the filtration of such liquids as vinegar, wines, whiskies, cordials, olive oil, grape, lemon and orange juices, syrups, brines, extracts, face lotions, alcohol, perfumes and liquid soaps.

The filtering units are manufactured in a variety of models, sizes and shapes and include the three-way multiple filter, cloth filter press and hard rubber filter.

Other Products
Bottle fillers are also made in several models including the semi-automatic vacuum, portable vacuum and the conveyor type of semi-automatic vacuum. The bottle capper and portable electrically driven pump are other specialties of the concern.

The filters are used in some of the largest distilleries, wineries, drug, food and chemical plants in the United States and in foreign countries.

A circular prepared by the plant officials explains: "Our staff is confronted daily with filtration problems and in the majority of cases we have found that Ertel equipment has made it possible to turn out an absolutely brilliant product. We attribute these accomplishments to our years of experience in selecting and refining the raw materials used in the manufacture of the well known and approved Ertel neutral asbestos filter disks used in conjunction with the Ertel precision built filters."

Explained further as a point in the plant's favor is the fact that it maintains "a staff of competent engineers, who have had extensive experience in the science of filtration. This service is given without extra charge."

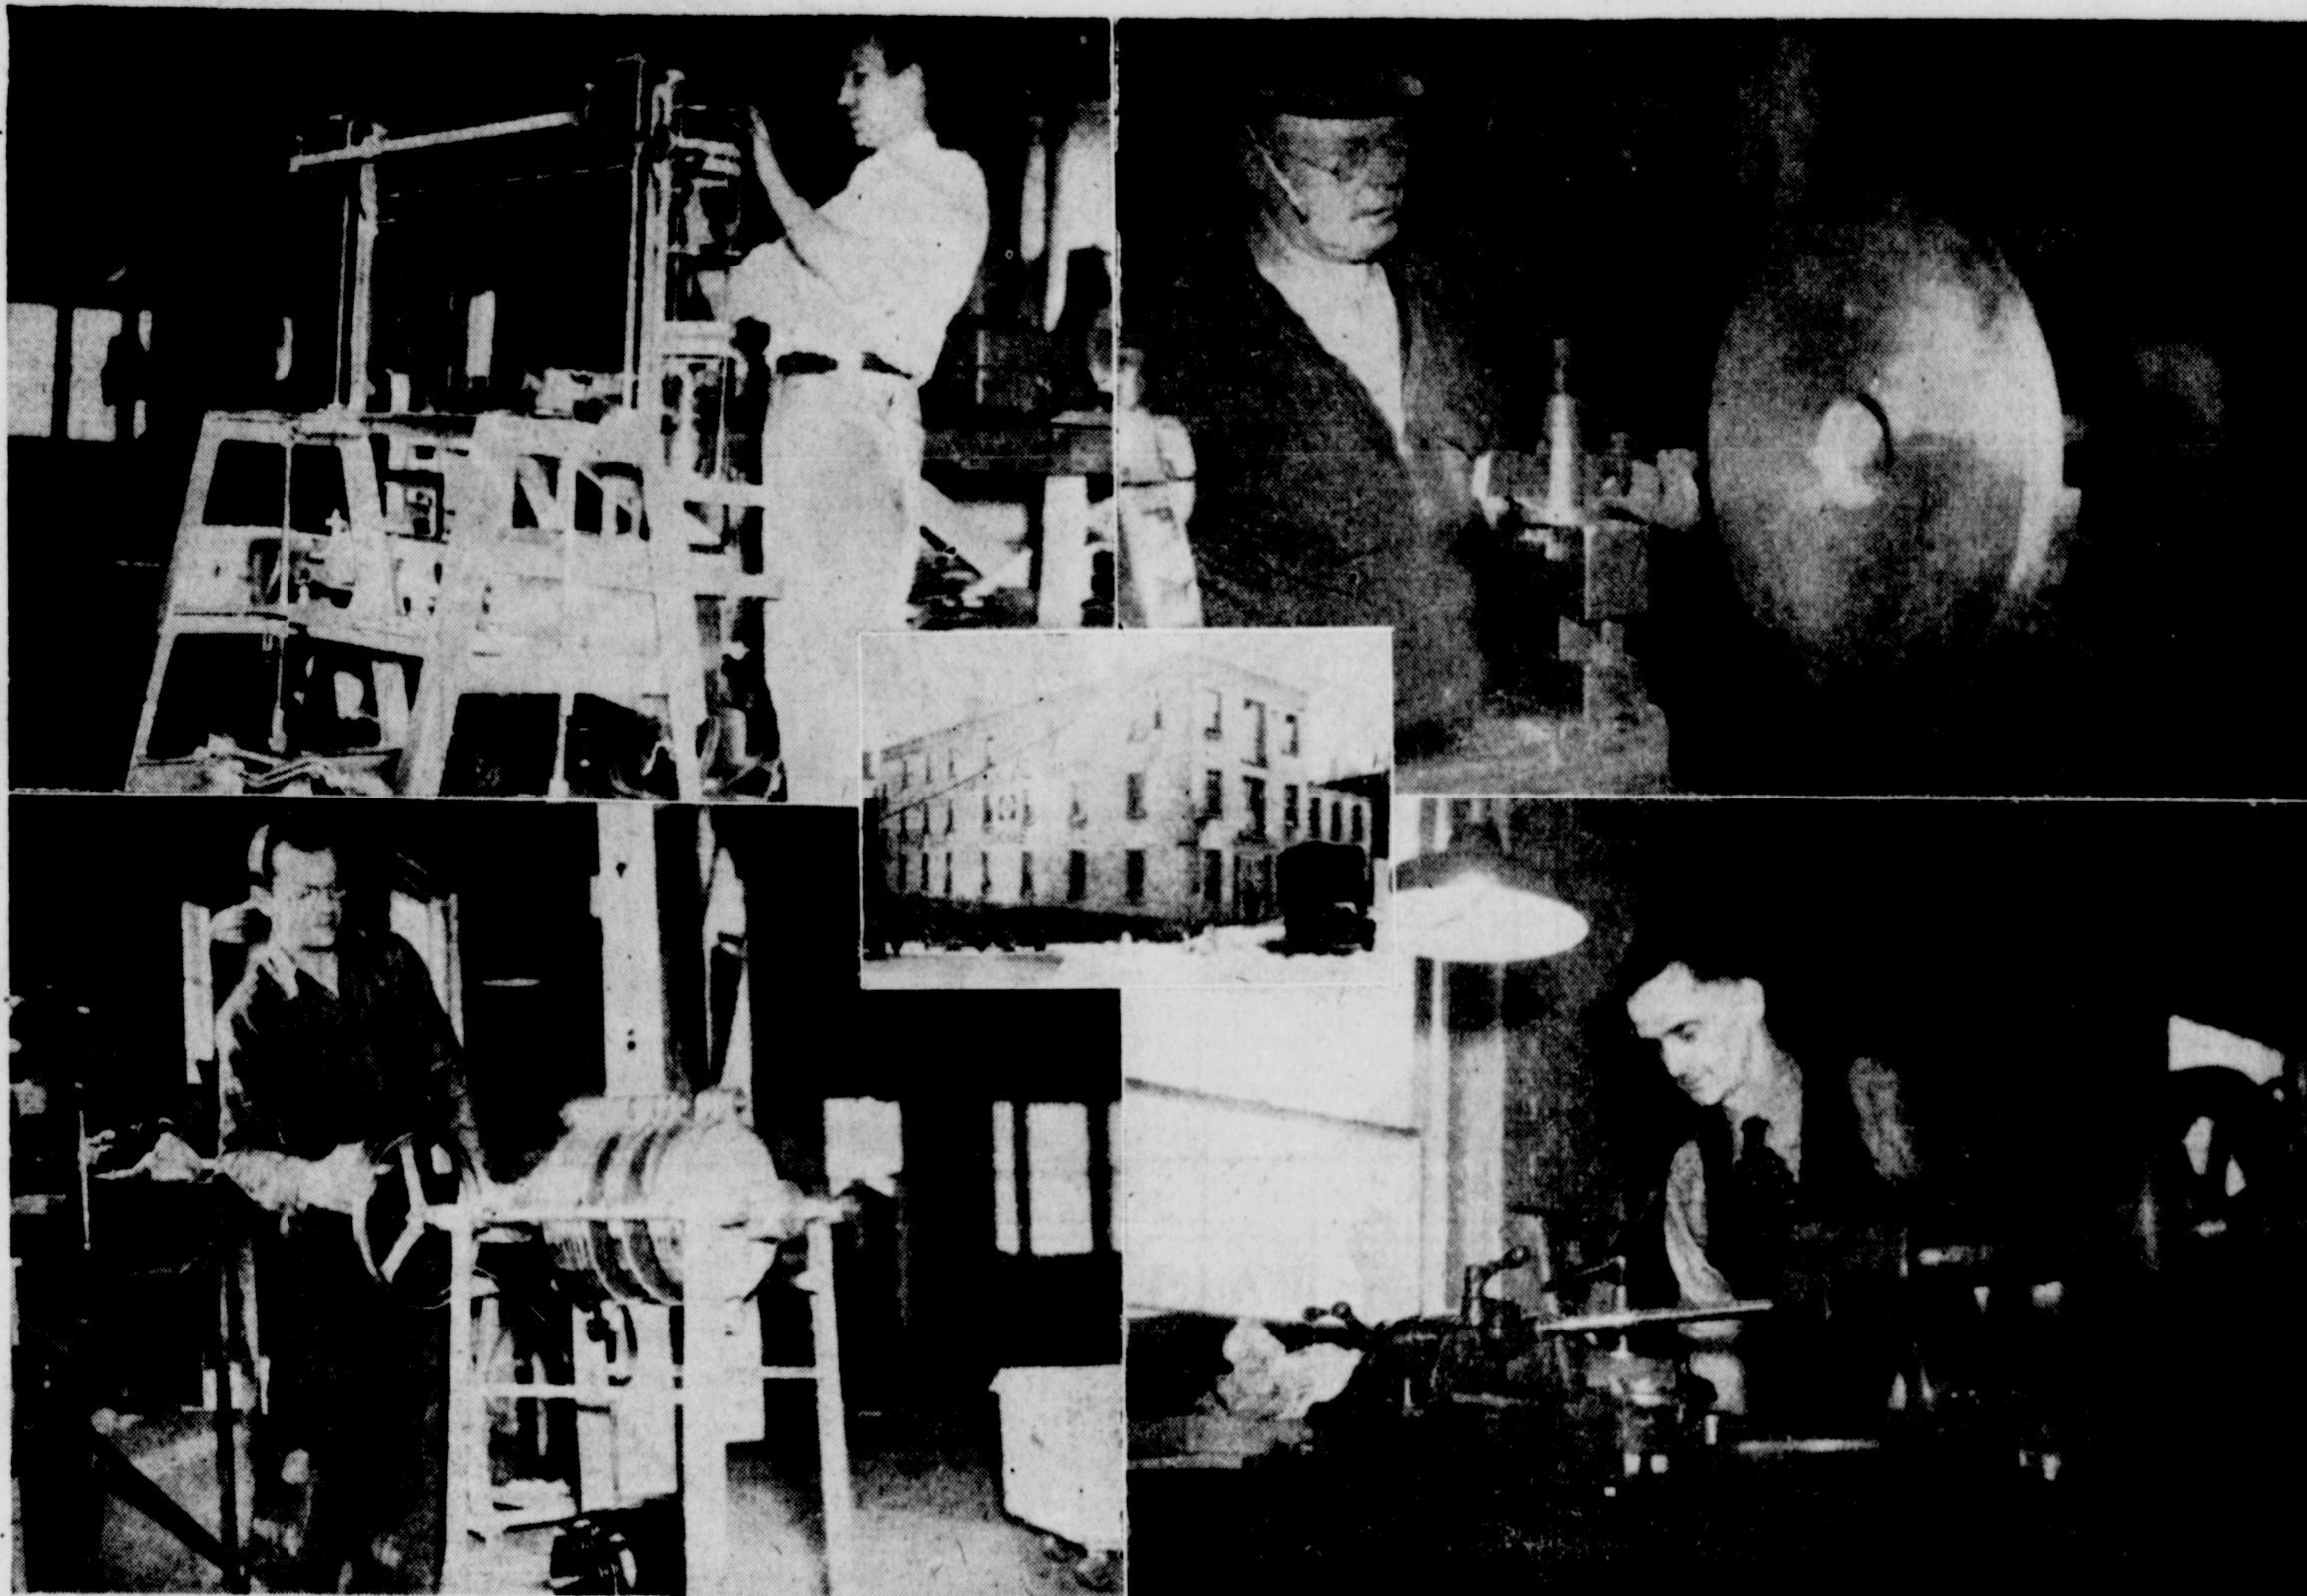

Local Men Employed
The plant employs a trained staff of workmen most of whom are local. The heavier machine parts are made on the lower floor and the other lighter operations are completed on the two upper floors.

Both open and closed types of glass-lined tanks are made at the plant and the same two types are produced in Allegheny stainless steel. An open type tank with side mixer is listed as another specialty of the factory. Smaller machine units made include the direct drive and back geared mixers.

Mr. Ertel is president of the corporation and the other officers are Charles Uhlig, vice president; J. F. Crotty, treasurer; O. Rathmaler, secretary, and G. A. Harkins, assistant secretary.

The wheels of this interesting industry are now humming at a high production rate in a local factory building which had been also use the bottle capping and filling units, and other machines made at the factory. All functions at the plant are performed by skilled workmen and the machines are highly specialized. Shown above is a view of the plant (inset) and of some of the men at work. They are: top left Hans Maylahn, adjusting a part on one of the machines manufactured on the lower floor; top right, Earl Kirkpatrick at one of the large lathes; lower left, George Fischer turning wheel of a filtering unit and lower right, Charles Garron working on one of the smaller lathes.

Dusty Bones of Pioneers, Many of Noted Personages, To Go Into New Mausoleum

San Francisco, March 2. (AP)—Dusty skeletons of rich and powerful families of the California gold rush days were dragged from their tombs as workmen began the removal yesterday of Laurel Hill Cemetery to make way for a real estate development.

There are 38,500 dead in the 50-acre area, and the job will take more than 15 months.

The workmen had orders to dig up everything except the black cypress trees that have sheltered the tombs since the cemetery was opened in 1854 on what was then called Lone Mountain. The cemetery now is in the center of San Francisco, and the land is wanted for homes.

Buried there are some of the west's most famous pioneers.

The huge pyramid tomb of U. S. Senator David C. Broderick of California is a show place. Broderick was killed by State Supreme Court Justice David S. Terry in 1859 in the west's most noted duel. Under a great table-shaped stone lie the bones of the fabulously wealthy Comstock Lode figure, U. S. Senator William Sharon of Nevada.

Altogether, 11 U. S. Senators were buried at Laurel Hill. Some bodies since have been removed.

Another grave is that of William M. Bourn, mining millionaire whose money later purchased the Killarney Lakes for the Irish Free State; and M. Hall McAllister, who brought the law to the west as the first California judge of the U. S. circuit court, and who was the father of Ward McAllister, New York society figure, who coined the name, "400."

The bones will be placed in a mausoleum to be erected near San Francisco and maintained with funds from sale of the land.

Will Rogers Is Coming Home

Claremore, Okla., March 2. (AP) Will Rogers is coming home. He will rest on a green slope he chose as a good homesite for the old age he hoped to spend among his own folk.

The widow of the cowboy philosopher has agreed to removal of his body from California to his native Rogers county in Oklahoma.

Gov. Leon C. Phillips of Oklahoma announced Mrs. Betty Rogers' decision from Los Angeles.

The crypt will be built here on the brow of a hill bearing the low slung, gray stone memorial which Oklahoma built in honor of her favorite son.

Site of Future Home
Soon after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers bought the ground as a site of a future home. The droll comedian's successes took him elsewhere but he expected to return.

vacant for many years. It is therefore an enterprise of substantial value to the community and one which gives promise of growing vastly more important in the years to come.

WHERE BRITISH CORNERED THE ALTMARK

This striking picture of the German prison ship Altmarm caught in the ice of a Norwegian fjord shows what a ticklish job the British had on their hands when the destroyer Cossack darted into the narrow waters, conquered the enemy, and took off nearly 300 English sailors who had been prisoners. The Cossack's boarding party turned the trick on February 17.

U. S. Gallery of Art Under Way

Building, Gift to Nation of Late Andrew Mellon, Done by August.

WASHINGTON.—Work on the National Gallery of Art is progressing through the interior and the $15,000,000 building, gift to the United States of the late Andrew W. Mellon, will be completed by August, it was announced. It will be several months after completion of the building, however, before the galleries are decorated and the collections arranged for inspection by the public. The last section of the heavy wire-woven glass in the two-acre skylight roof has been laid in place and the glass ceilings of the individual gallery rooms are now being laid. The exterior of the building has been completed with the exception of the pediment on the Mall side and the steps leading up to the main entrance.

Rockwood stone, forming the walls of the rotunda, main sculpture galleries and the entrance lobbies, is being set. The rotunda will be surrounded by an Ionic order of 24 columns of dark green marble. The rotunda's floor will be of Nero Nube, a black marble.

To House Sculpture.
Large pieces of sculpture will be housed in the two central galleries. Paintings and smaller pieces of sculpture will be displayed in the exhibition galleries which open off the central galleries and surround the garden courts. The paintings will be shown in rooms especially designed for their schools and periods.

Galleries accommodating Italian paintings and sculpture will be finished with travertine or plaster walls. Doors and wainscot will be trimmed with travertine and the floors will be of wood. Dutch paintings will be shown in rooms paneled with oak. French, British and American oils of the eighteenth century will be hung in room paneled with painted wood.

The gallery has acquired two fountains executed in 1672 for Louis XIV of France, for the Theater d' Eau at the Palace of Versailles. One will be placed in each of the garden courts of the main gallery floor.

Fountains a Feature.

Each of these courts, 106 feet long and 76 feet wide, contains 16 monolithic columns and leads into wide central galleries opening off the rotunda. There will be gardens in the courts and benches for the visitors.

The fountains, modeled of lead, are comparable in size and general motif. One, executed by Pierre Legros, represents two winged cherubs playing with a lyre. The other, by Jean Baptiste Tubi, portrays two cherubs playing with a swan. The gallery will house Mr. Mellon's collection of 111 paintings and 21 pieces of sculpture and Samuel H. Kress' collection of 375 paintings and 18 pieces of sculpture. The Mellon collection includes three Raphaels and four Botticellis as well as canvases by Duccio, Fra Angelico, Jan van Eyck, Titian, Rubens, Vandyke, Rembrandt, Vermeer, Franz Hals, Goya, El Greco and Valazquez.

Cold and Slow
Repeated experiments have proven that the temperature of a hibernating animal is usually about five degrees lower than the surrounding air . . . so, if the air were so cold that the animal's body temperature went below the freezing point, it would freeze to death . . . which is probably the reason most animals "dig in" for the hibernating period . . . Incidentally, heart action is almost suspended during complete hibernation . . . for instance, the heart beat of an active ground squirrel is normally around 350 a minute . . . yet the heart of the same animal slows down to about 17 beats a minute—or about every 16 seconds—during hibernation.

Death Valley's Weird Beauty
Death valley's weird beauty and almost incredible coloring, together with its clear, dry air and sunshine, make that area an interesting scenic region. Within the boundaries of Death Valley National monument are five "ghost towns." Half a dozen more lie just beyond its borders. The largest of the group is Greenwater, the peak population of which was 2,000. To the casual tourist the terrain may seem devoid of life, yet more than 500 species of plants have been listed and there are many varieties of animals, many being nocturnal. All species graphically illustrate nature's capacity for adaptation to environment.

Streamline Your Meals, Advises Cooking Expert

American families spend between 17 and 18 billion dollars feeding themselves each year, according to Miss Glenna Henderson, food expert of the University of Illinois. This would mean about $600 a year a family if all families spent the same amount. As every homemaker knows, however, the food bill is high or low depending upon a multitude of circumstances. Whether the family gets value received from what money depends largely upon what sort of planning the homemaker does at home.

Returns from the money which goes into food for the family should be no less proportionately than the efficiency demanded of a $600 streamlined car. A carefully thought-out plan was utilized long before the car reached the highway. Similarly a pencil-and-paper planning of adequate meals can be expected to give the greatest return for the money.

A "streamlined" meal, in Miss Henderson's terminology, means one that consistently devotes more than half of all the calories to milk and milk products, fruits, vegetables and eggs before other foods are considered. These "protective" foods, known for their vitamin and mineral contribution to health, receive first consideration in every menu. The remainder of the meal, then, may be completed with energy-giving and body-building foods such as bread, potatoes and meat.

Variety in color, appearance, texture and flavor is important when planning menus. Foods of strong or distinct flavor should be served with those of mild flavor. If homemakers will use the pencil-and-paper method of planning meals, they will find it is quite an enjoyable game and can work out many interesting food combinations without spending more money.

Hamlet Accessible Only

By Ladder Now on Road

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND.—One of the world's most inaccessible towns has lost that distinction.

For many years the only approach to Albinen, in one of the remote Alpine valleys in the canton of Valais, from the spa at Leuk has been by a flight of ladders tied to an almost perpendicular rock cliff. It was an everyday sight to see villagers scaling the height, carrying huge loads—bundles, baskets, and even a pig or two.

Now a road has been built to the mountain town. But the ladders remain as a short cut route.

While the new courthouse is being constructed during the next year, sessions will be held in the First Baptist church.

PENSION BACK PAYMENTS

Resolutions to the effect that regular employees of the city and of the Board of Education may take advantage of the state retirement fund benefits by joining the State Employees' Retirement System have been passed by the Common Council and the Board of Education. Since the passage of these resolutions, the question of deficiency payments and who must pay the back assessments has arisen.

It was stated at the Board of Education meeting in January that while the exact costs and benefits were not known it was expected that all of the employees of the board might become eligible at a cost of between $2,500 and $3,000 to the board. The individual employee made his or her contribution to the retirement fund out of wages and when an employee reached seventy may retire. At the age of seventy if physically fit after an examination two additional years of employment may be had but at the age of seventy-two retirement must take place.

Announcement was made concerning back payments by Board of Education employees, which apparently would apply to other city employees. It was stated that employees who have been in service of the board for a period of years may come in the fund now without making back payments and still receive full credit for past service in computing their retirement pay. A man now seventy may join and make a payment to the fund and then be retired with credit for his past service to the board, but if they do not join now and do so later they will be required to make scheduled back payments before becoming eligible.

Since the state fund is reputed to be actuarially sound this offer seems extremely liberal and should be a big inducement for city employees to join the state system, especially those who have had years of service and who could not afford to make the back payments out of their incomes.

The waiving of back payments and still giving credit to years of service is questioned by many residents who are skeptical that any such action amending the state fund has been taken by the commissioners of the State Retirement System.

However, the Board of Aldermen can clear up any doubt in the matter if, when they are considering the pension problem of the police and firemen, they take up this matter and bring out the facts.

They should find out if back payments have been waived and if not who must pay the deficiency. Will the taxpayers of the city have to stand the bill? Will the employees have to make the back payments? How much will it cost?

CHAMPIONS' NAMES

Sometimes we wonder whether archeologists, deciphering records left by us, will be able to make much headway with our sports pages. In addition to the weird, special jargon of the sports realm—which won't tie in with the dictionaries—there is another field of confusion. The names of race horses and of dog champions in kennel shows are baffling to the uninitiated even today. What can remote scholars think when they come upon "Winter's Fashion Plate", "Desert Deputy", "Nornay Saddler", "Seabiscuit", "Man O' War", and all the rest?

The names of Pullman cars, much ridiculed, are really far simpler. It must be admitted, however, they are not so important as the pedigreed animals whose names must convey not only individuality but information.

BONUS FOR TRAVELERS

There is an interesting money situation now as regards the United States and Canada. The Canadian government insists on paying American visitors a 10 percent bonus on their money.

That 10 percent is legal, to be sure. With Canada at war, Canadian money, normally at par with American money, is at a discount. Americans sending or taking money to Canada have a right to their premium. But ordinarily, importers of money that is above par have to ask for their premium. The interesting fact now is that Canada insists on paying the premium, widely advertises it, and is getting tough with Canadians who, in accepting a $10 American banknote, fail to allow $11 of Canadian money for it.

This is said to be nearly all velvet for Americans, because Canadian prices have risen very little. The reason for Canada's extra-painful squareness about it is that the Dominion needs American tourist money for exchange to pay for heavy imports of American war supplies.

COLOR CONFUSION

This is a colorful age, with people using bright colors for home decoration, for clothing, for cars and a host of other things. Even so, few people would have supposed that the human eye could distinguish differences among 2,000,000 shades, as was stated by a speaker at the joint annual meeting of the Inter-Society Color Council, the American Physical Society and the Optical Society of America.

Only 7,044 colors and shades have been tabulated, he said, and only 3,400 have been given names which are recognized by dictionaries. That still leaves plenty of room for confusion, and many people make the most of the opportunity, using color combinations that set the observer's teeth on edge as well as others which are a delight to the eye.

The confusion is likely to be reduced to order one of these days, if the color council succeeds in its appointed task. The council is composed of representatives of eleven scientific and industrial organizations interested in standardizing colors. Order in this field should be a boon to the nation without in any way curtailing use and enjoyment of color or dimming the rainbow's beauty.

COMMUNIST PLANNING

An American newspaper man tells of visiting, some years ago, an office building in Moscow where government planning schemes were being worked on. The inscription on one door read: "Commission for the Electrification of All Russia."

Under this grand announcement was a placard saying: "Please Knock, Electric Bell Not Working."

There are said to be more than 1,000 "certified descendants of the Washingtons." But George himself left only one descendant, whose initials are U. S. A.

Not the least of human rights is the right to feel superior.

This is a frustrated civilization; the more progress it makes, the less security it has.

"FREEZING" TREATMENT OF CANCER

Newspapers have been giving much space to the new method (freezing) of treating cancer, because cancer touches so many homes. The new treatment is just what its name implies. The tissues of the body are made so cold that the growth of the cancer tissues is prevented. As you know, cancer tissues or cells are not different from ordinary body cells except that they do not grow in the regular or orderly way of normal body cells. The "freezing" treatment, as originated by Dr. Temple Fay and Lawrence W. Smith, Philadelphia, and outlined in Medical World by Dr. Frederick C. Smith is as follows:

An anaesthetic is given the patient so that he will not feel the cold. This prevents the shivering and discomfort which accompanies the start of the cooling process. After being given the anaesthetic, the patient is carried to one of the refrigerated rooms. Two patients are usually treated at once. The patient is placed on a rubber-covered mattress, stripped, and pieces of ice about an inch in diameter packed close around him. His temperature (taken by rectum or outlet from lower bowel) is recorded continuously on a huge dial thermometer beside the bed. A careful check is also kept on the heart beat and blood pressure. In about two hours internal temperature goes down to 90°F. As soon as the needle on the big thermometer touches 82 degrees F., or temperature agreed upon, the ice is removed. From then on the chill of the room is depended upon to maintain the temperature. If the needle starts to drop rapidly blankets are placed over the patient. Feedings of food by the nose every hour and a half are given. For five days the patient is kept in this frigid or frozen state. At the end of the five days, he is brought slowly back to normal temperature. It required only two hours to cool him but about eight hours to bring the temperature up to normal.

I am passing along the above information so that the patient and his loved ones may know just what this freezing treatment means and will not be afraid of pain and danger. The idea behind this "freezing" treatment is that nature or normal cells can do without much oxygen and keep alive but cancer cells, like any "growing" cells need more oxygen. The freezing prevents cancer cells from getting enough oxygen to keep them alive.

Man Who Would Cut Hill's Salary Gives Federal Budget Balancers Something to Worry About

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 2.—Many people here who have been worrying about how to balance the federal budget have had some new worries given them by the man who wants to limit executive salaries and incentive payments in large corporations.

Thus, a holder of a few shares of the stock of American Tobacco Company has proposed that the salary of George W. Hill, president, be limited to $100,000, but if anything like that happens, Washington will be considerably disturbed because, as matters stand now, Uncle Sam gets $277,000 out of Mr. Hill's earnings of $420,000 a year. If the $320,000 above the $100,000 limitation were distributed among the stockholders, these stockholders would each get between five and six cents apiece more per share of stock held, but Uncle Sam would get hardly anything in taxes.

The treasury would lose enormous sums if any such thing would happen to executive salaries or incentive compensations generally. The public does not realize the extent to which the graduated income tax system now in effect depends on men of extraordinary capacity to earn big annual sums.

The publicity that is often given to large salaries fails to tell how much of it is net to the executive. Thus, in the case of Mr. Hill, he pays the federal government $277,000, but he probably pays additional sums in state income taxes too.

But the principle back of the question raised in connection with the case of the American Tobacco Company's executives is even more interesting from another tax angle. Mr. Hill, for instance, says that unless the stockholders pay him what he thinks is the value of his services to the company, he will not continue. In that respect he is like any other individual who values his services in terms of what he can do to help the gross income of a corporation grow. Mr. Hill's compensation has been based on his ability to bring the gross income of the company up higher and higher each year. Under the present incentive plan, Mr. Hill gets 10 per cent of net profits of American Tobacco Company when they rise above $15,000,000. Now it so happens that when the net income of the company goes up, the federal income taxes of the corporation also rise, but something else far more important than Mr. Hill's individual taxes or the income taxes of the company is involved. The latest statement shows that the sales for 1939 amounted to about $262,000,000. This means a huge volume of sales on which, for every package of cigarettes, the federal government collects a high percentage. Thus, the tobacco tax today is one of the most productive of all the internal revenue collections. Uncle Sam and the other taxing authorities get nine cents out of every 15 cent package of cigarettes. So on the ordinary sales taxes alone, the federal and state and city governments nowadays have a 60 per cent interest in cigarette sales. Anybody therefore, who increases the total sales is helping the Treasury collect more revenue.

It is not generally realized the extent to which cigarettes are taxed today. Thus in New York, one cent goes to the city, two cents to the state, and six cents to the federal government. Out of the remaining six cents must come all the money paid to the tobacco farmer, the manufacturer, the wholesaler and retailer, as well as all distribution and selling costs and whatever profits are earned by any of the different intermediate factors involved in the whole operation.

What is true of the tobacco business is true of other businesses. Men of capacity and genius like George W. Hill who have made salesmanship a life work have gradually earned more and more income for the stockholders, but also have gradually increased Uncle Sam's total collections as sales have been increased.

The man who is trying to cut down the income for the executive may think he is doing salesmanship a service, but the income tax experts hereabouts say it will mean less and less money for the Treasury under any such plan. As a matter of fact, the Treasury is for bigger and better bonuses and bigger salaries for executives, because, when the tax collector comes around, he takes sometimes as high as 80 per cent. And strangely enough that is one of the very reasons for unemployment today. Few men who are earning large sums feel they can take risks in investing in business because, if they lose, the government doesn't pay them a nickel, but if they win, the government takes nearly all the winnings. Hence, risk-capital, so essential to small businesses, especially, and the creation of new jobs, is diminishing constantly.

ARMY TESTS NEW 'FLYING MOTORCYCLE'—This is the new "flying motorcycle" plane, tested at San Diego for army officials and given this name because of its skimpy lines and build, and its operation. The ship can take off in cramped space at high speed and then hover almost motionless; it comes to a full stop 10 feet after its wheels touch the ground. Officials pointed out that its value would increase in war times, when space for taking off and landing would be greatly restricted.

Chapter Five

One Jump Ahead

THEN somehow Major John Toland was eased gently from the room. Bartell and A. J. disappeared into another office, and Miss Lloyd returned to her own desk.

Tomi stood at the window, brow pressed to the cold pane. Of course the California attorney was trying to forestall a will contest based on Timothy Toland's mental incompetency. Oh, he was clever, this Bartell. She felt a little chill of apprehension when she realized just how clever and quick thinking he was proving to be.

And he was young. The Major was old. Poor old Major. Tomi knew he was mostly noise. Oh, she'd been afraid of his noise when she first came from France. Many a time she had covered in a clothes press until his breath had petered out.

Then one night when she had been ill he had tiptoed in to pull the covers snugly over her shoulders. One couldn't take even a big noise seriously, after seeing its portly form in red-striped pajamas.

Moments passed. Tomi tried to complete her preparations for departure. She felt as though only one half of her was going West; the other half would remain in the gloomy old Toland house, hating it, pitying those who were incarcerated there through their fear of attempting to face a new world.

A. J. came in from his conference with Bartell, rubbing his palms together in a pleased fashion.

"Bartell's gone after your reservations. There were two cancellations on the night plane, and he was able to catch them. This will enable you to get away from this unsavory publicity."

Tomi frowned. To leave within twenty-four hours of hearing of her legacy seemed too abrupt. She hadn't had time to adjust herself mentally. And then she remembered what Bartell had said the previous evening. He had been eager to leave. Perhaps he had inspired this publicity to force her to leave at once.

"So nice of him to let me know my plans," she observed. "I don't know why he thinks I have to jump every time he whistles."

"Now, Tomi," scolded A. J., "he's only looking out for your interests; trying to help you out of a difficult situation. See how quickly he grasped the insanity possibilities? Probably saved you a lot of litigation."

"Saved himself," countered Tomi. "Doesn't it occur to you that he won't stand a chance of winning the estate for himself, even though I do fail, if the family wins a contest?"

Shopping Tour

A. J. MORRIS shook his head. "Ah, me," he mourned. "I suppose living with that family would put such suspicions into one's head. Besides, what's the use of crossing bridges until you come to them?"

"It's a good plan," snapped Tomi, "to look ahead and make sure somebody hasn't stolen the bridge you'll have to cross if you want to reach the other side."

Morris decided to chuckle.

"Maybe this will cheer you up. Bartell asked me to tell you he'd deposited a certified check for a thousand to your account. He said there was more where that came from, and advised you to invest in light luggage for your plane trip. Now get out of here and go shopping. I'll have your hotel luggage transferred to my apartment. Mrs. Morris will be glad to help you repack and will forward by train what you can't carry. And remember you're having dinner with us and staying until time to go to the airport."

For the first time, Tomi actually felt like an heiress. One thousand dollars awaiting her checks against them, and more dollars where those came from.

Money, to Tomi, meant the clothes she had always wanted to buy. Not the slightly worn models of excellent cut and material which she had followed from salon to her pristine finery.

Hours later, when Tomi started for the Morris apartment, twilight was a cold, blue haze over the city. Tomi, however, didn't sense the cold. She had run into a summer cruise sale. She had reveled in flowered prints, in sheer white linens, gay peasant kerchiefs, sandals, great wide-brimmed hats.

California, she had reasoned, was South.

'Her Reactions'

SHE was conscious of the translucent blue haze. She was swimming in the intoxicating air. Occasionally, when her cab lurched to a sudden stop and the boxes and bundles piled into her, she was aware of terra firma some place beneath them.

Much to her amazement, Bartell, as well as Mrs. Morris, awaited her. And between them was a pair of scales.

Tomi staggered into the door, followed by the cab driver and doorman, both loaded with other purchases, and decided she liked Bartell. He seemed as delighted as she over her shopping orgy.

Later, as he firmly said no to everything she wanted to carry, and proved it by the scales—twenty-five pounds were all that she would be allowed on the plane—she decided he had merely been easing his conscience by allowing her one good time before he closed in on her expenditures.

A. J. came in to relieve her of Bartell's presence, and Tomi, passing before the living-room door where the two men had gone for cocktails, caught snatches of their conversation. She assumed they were speaking of the Major.

"It would have done his heart good," Bartell was saying.

And on her return A. J. was ponderously commenting, "Right, absolutely right. He knows Tomi—her reactions."

Tomi paused and looked in. Bartell was half reclining in a deep chair before an open fire. Little copper lights glinted in the waves of his hair, and turned the gray of his eyes to amber. His lips were curved in a teasing smile, as though he were anticipating some bit of devilry of his own making. Tomi waited a full moment before she turned swiftly away.

"No you don't," she whispered, and didn't know whether she was referring to Bartell's plans to win her legacy or to some inner tumult which threatened her peace of mind.

Dinner was a gay, informal affair. Then came the last-minute rush of dressing. Tomi reveled in her mirrored reflection, eyes on the black herringbone tweed with its yellow doe-skin vest which was barely visible above the trimly tailored jacket.

Then came a sudden sadness. She went to the window to stare out to where Lake Michigan was a dull smudge beyond the snow-laden trees.

"BEWARE the Ides of March," the soothsayer warned Caesar—and on March 15 Caesar was assassinated. In recent years March again has had an ominous ring because another conqueror has chosen that month for spectacular deeds increasing his country's might. Those deeds, especially the seizure of Czechoslovakia just a year ago, led to the European war. What will Hitler do in 1940? He himself may not know. But in considering the possibilities, military men point out that the end of winter makes possible large-scale fighting on the western front—and just 22 years ago this month, Germany launched her last big drive of the World War.

Change of Venue Sought by Man In Divorce Case

David Pecker of Coney Island sought to have an action for divorce brought by his wife, Rose Pecker of this city, transferred to Kings county for trial. He sought to secure a change on the grounds of convenience of witnesses. Morris Kurman appeared for the defendant, and Francis Martocci of Phoenicia appeared for the plaintiff and opposed the application.

Married in New York City Mrs. Pecker and her husband lived in Brooklyn for some time but in 1932 she came to Kingston to live and that year entered into a separation action but the action was never tried.

At the time of the bringing of the separation action Mrs. Pecker brought an action in Ulster county and an application was made to Justice John T. Loughran for a change of venue to Kings county. That application was granted for convenience of witnesses, practically all of whom lived in Brooklyn.

The separation action was not tried and Pecker agreed to give his wife $10 a week for her support and that of the child. Counsel for Mrs. Pecker says, however, that he has been paying but $7 a week.

Counsel for Mr. Pecker asked the transfer of the action to Kings county on the grounds of convenience of witnesses, among them he said was the co-respondent.

Sadie Silvermann, and her sister, who seek to appear at the trial and clear the good name of the co-respondent named in the complaint of Mrs. Pecker.

After hearing counsel for the defendant Justice Schirick said he probably would deny the application but gave counsel until next Wednesday to file affidavits. The court said that so far as was shown to him the only witnesses which would be convenient by the change of venue was the co-respondent, who was a party to the action, her sister and relatives of the parties, who under the law could not be considered in looking to convenience. Justice Schirick said the plaintiff lived in Kingston and had a right to bring her action here.

Counsel for defendant said the change had been granted in the separation action by Judge John T. Loughran, now of the Court of Appeals. Francis Martocci for the plaintiff said that in that case the witnesses practically all resided in Brooklyn where the acts upon which the separation had been based, took place. This was not true in the divorce action and Mrs. Pecker had but recently been in a local hospital and was physically unable to make the trip.

In discussion of the matter Mr. Martocci told the court that the process server who had attempted to serve a paper in the case at the home of Sarah Silverman had been beaten up by a man to such an extent that a warrant for assault had been sought.

Justice Schirick said he would probably deny the motion but gave defendant's counsel until Wednesday to file additional affidavits.

Can't Be Done, Judge Tells Man In Alimony Tiff

Andrew Mull can't support two women on one salary and seeks to have alimony, which the court has directed to be paid to his wife, reduced. His wife, Anna Mull, of Kingston, objects. The matter was heard in supreme court Friday before Justice Schirick.

Francis C. Murray appeared for Mrs. Mull and Mr. Mull, who lives in New Jersey, was represented by New York counsel.

Some time ago a divorce decree was granted and Mrs. Mull was granted $12 a week alimony. Friday counsel for Mr. Mull appeared in court and asked for a reduction of this alimony which was fixed last December, on the grounds that Mr. Mull, living in New Jersey, had expenses of $26 a week and was unable to pay the alimony out of his remaining wage.

Counsel in presenting his case to the court stated that Mull was under this large weekly expense because he was residing in New Jersey and had to support a child born to the co-respondent in the divorce case brought by Mrs. Mull.

Mr. Murray stated that the co-respondent and Mull did live together and he undoubtedly was supporting the child, but he held that this most unusual excuse was not a just one. He told the court that the very woman named as the co-respondent in the divorce action was the one now being supported by Mull and the person named as being the reason for his not meeting the alimony directed to be paid to his first wife.

"But your honor, he intends to marry this woman," said the counsel for Mull.

At this point Justice Schirick informed the attorney that Mull was unable to marry anyone. The court in granting the divorce to Mrs. Mull had directed that the defendant could not marry again without the express order of the court.

Justice Schirick said the case was a most unusual one, one in which the defendant had no grounds for asking for a reduction of alimony. His statement that he was unable to pay because he was supporting the child of the co-respondent was absolutely no grounds for an application for reduction of payments. The court spoke frankly to the attorney, who said it was not his case but he had been retained of counsel and told counsel that there was no reason why any reduction should be granted.

JIMMY'S WIFE TO PRESS DIVORCE

came to California in October, 1938, and how she followed, later, although Roosevelt had not asked her to join him. She testified that he repeated his demand for a divorce.

"He asked me to leave California," she told the court. "I left. I decided it was the best thing for the children. I still refused him a divorce."

Since then, Mrs. Roosevelt said, she has lived in New York, and since her husband did not ask her to return to him, she remained away from California altogether.

Under terms of the settlement introduced in court it was disclosed that Mrs. Roosevelt received a flat sum of $85,000 yesterday, with a choice of $50,000 more five years hence, or $5,000 annually until she remarries. She agreed, in return, not to ask for alimony.

Money for Children

In addition, the children, Sara Delano, 7, and Kate, 4, are to receive $166.67 a month from their father until they reach the age of 12, and after that $250 monthly until they become 21. Roosevelt further agreed to maintain a $25,000 insurance policy on his life in their favor. Mrs. Roosevelt retains their custody.

Roosevelt also stipulated that in the event his net income, less federal and state taxes, exceeds $50,000 during 1940, 1941, 1942 or 1943, the children shall receive two per cent of the excess, but not to exceed $1,000 annually additional to each. If his income exceeds $50,000 a year after 1943, the two children will receive five per cent of the excess, up to $1,000 each.

The James Roosevelts were married in Brookline, Mass., June 4, 1930.

Following the snow which ushered in the month on Friday the temperature gradually began dropping last night until close to zero temperatures were recorded in the city. The official city thermometer recorded a low of six degrees above zero, which was 14 degrees colder than Friday when a low of 20 degrees was recorded. While the official thermometer was recording a low of six above, thermometers in other sections of the city recorded as low as two below.

Hitler Fighting for German Monroe Doctrine, Report

British fortresses as Gibraltar, Malta and Singapore must be dismantled.

Such spots as these are regarded by Germany as "pirate hang-outs," it was said.

If, as presumed likely, Welles asked Hitler why Germany was embarked on autarchy and whether the Reich was ready to go along with U. S. Secretary of State Hull on his trade policies, the answer was said already to have been given almost a month ago by an inspired and carefully considered article from the pen of Karl Megeyer of the Boersen Zeitung, chief editorial mouthpiece of the foreign office.

He defended autarchy as "the most social system of international economy in the 20th century."

Here is what Megeyer wrote: "For all nations desiring to emerge from permanent dependence upon the 'haves,' autarchy is not an attack but a defense of independence, it isn't imperialism but a self-imposed limitation for self help and for a condition of equality among nations."

"Beyond that it is an essential protection for the working population against the ups and downs of business, against the crises of speculation, derangement of currencies and arbitrary rule of gold. 'It (autarchy) compels peoples to set their hands to work to use their heads in order to make the utmost possible use of what they have and to use economically what has been allotted to them. It is thus a creative principle. Ethical justification for autarchic policies is therefore as undeniable as is the system of clearing and direct barter developed in Germany in trading with other nations."

"It guarantees honest exchange of goods for goods even to the weakest economic partner, to national economies as yet undeveloped. That means an honest exchange of honest labor for honest labor is achieved."

"This system knows no capitalistic exploitation of the weaker, and thereby also no political influence is exerted via the detour of capitalistic loans and investments. 'Its greatest natural working cooperativeness and solid, lasting economic bases."

"Autarchy and the clearing system are the most social systems of international economy of the twentieth century."

The naturalist Charles Darwin made it a practice to work only three hours a day.

Schirick Declares Divorce Evidence Warrants Decree

Agnes Miller of Hudson has brought an action for divorce against her husband, Charles Miller, who for the last 10 years has been living in Connecticut after allegedly abandonin his family in Hudson.

Married at Hudson on September 8, 1928, Mrs. Miller asked for support of her 3-year-old daughter but told Justice Harry E. Schirick in Supreme Court that she did not seek any alimony for herself.

Mrs. Miller testified that her husband's earnings as a roofer were about $42 a week and she suggested that $7 a week for the support of her child would be acceptable.

R. Monell Hertzberg appeared for Mrs. Miller. She said she had not lived with her husband for more than two years when they separated. Never since he has left her has he contributed any support for the child she told Justice Schirick.

Only one witness was called before.

side Mrs. Miller and Justice Schirick said that it was unusual, for him to grant a divorce decree on unsupported evidence but in this case he was convinced of the need and said he would grant the decree on the testimony of one Hudson witness who said he had seen Mr. Miller at a grill and later at a Columbia street house of ill-fame.

Counsel explained that Miller was living in Connecticut and was outside the jurisdiction of the court unless extradited and because of his residence in Connecticut and his infrequent visits to Hudson it had been impossible to secure additional evidence of misconduct.

After questioning Mrs. Miller regarding any support from her husband since he left her, the court said that he would not only grant the decree but would set the payment to be made by the husband at $9 a week.

Even Eve Curie Will Desert Scienceto Write About War

EVE CURIE

By MARGARET K. NODLE
AP Feature Service
Nobility ever mark a French maid for Eve Curie, I guess.
I recovered just in time to be impressed when Eve Curie, a chic, pleasant, modish woman, walked into the living room of her New York hotel suite.
I had called to learn what gave the daughter of the famous Mme. Curie, the radium woman, her reputation for chic. I stayed to learn something about that... but much else besides.

A Fashion Formula
With the late afternoon sun splashing on her, she removed the jacket of her simple black suit, revealing a gay reddish blouse, also softly tailored. I noticed the soft waves in her severely coiffured black hair. I liked her smart black pumps. Even her choice of pillbox hats varied by draped fabrics or snoods gives away her inclination to simplicity.

"Clothes are best reduced to their simplest expression," she commented. Her fashion formula combines Schiaparelli design with her own requisite of severity.

Almost at once she gave me the feeling that regardless of her accomplishments, the exciting thing about Eve Curie will continue to be herself.

Reverent to the point that emotion tipped into her voice when she spoke of her mother, this tall younger daughter showed almost childish pleasure in her fan-mail and definite grown-up satisfaction in the letters that tell her that readers of her biography regard Madame Curie as personal friend and heroine even though they never had met her.

She sat gracefully at ease on a divan and told me of her plans. Even the daughter of Mme. Curie, it seems, probably will write her next book on women in the war, and at least temporarily allow war to displace the book she intended to write on women in science.

Common Courtesy
—When Hiring A Maid

(AP) Feature Service

When you're hiring a new maid, Madam, let her be seated before the interview starts. And set right out with an outline of the duties you expect of her and the privileges you expect to grant. That's not only a kindness to the maid, it also will be a help to you to have a clear understanding of these points.

Here are some courtesies you should show her for her own welfare and for harmony in your household:
Be considerate in asking about her family and their habits. Inquire only to a reasonable extent about her arrangements for her own children while she is at work. Tell her you think it will be best not to bring them to your home.

Let her know at once whether or not she can receive visitors at your home, and if so, when.
Don't mislead her as to how much company you usually have, and don't underestimate her tasks when you have guests.
Make sure that she understands you want her to jot down telephone numbers and to read enough to accept mail.
Do not hesitate to ask her to have a health examination.

HARD AND FAST RULES GOVERN USE AND DROPPING OF "JR." AND "2ND"

Many People Also Confused About Combination of "Jr." and "Mr." —Have Nothing To Do With Each Other

A mar, is junior if he has the exact name of his father or, if having no uncle of the same name, is the first descendant to be named for his grandfather. If his father is junior, then the boy who is given the same name is John Smith, 3rd. But if his uncle is junior, then this boy is John Smith, 2nd. Or if he is named for his uncle, who is the original bearer of the name, the nephew is also John. The uncle's son—or grandson—can alone be Jr. But no matter which suffix is his, it is part of his name for so long as those ahead of him live. That is, when the original John Smith dies, the John Smith, Jr. becomes John Smith, 2nd. The one who was John Smith, 3rd, becomes John Smith, Jr. Legally the transition takes place at once. Socially it may take place gradually and has in a few rare instances—and for various personal reasons—been ignored sometimes by the bearer of the name, sometimes by the public, who refuse to concede the right to any one to carry on an irreplaceable name.

This should answer the letter that asks whether junior must be put on a son's visiting card to distinguish it from his father's, if he is not using any of his father's. Many people are confused about this combination of junior and Mr. Actually they have nothing whatever to do with each other. The former is part of his name, the latter, a prefix of courtesy.

Tea at Five and Cocktail at Six

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think it advisable to invite some of my friends to five and six for tea, and others to like cocktails, between six and seven for cocktails? Or would you ask them on different days?

Answer: I think it would be much better to say on all the invitations: Tea at 5 o'clock and Cocktails at 6 o'clock and let them choose their own time. I think people always have an unpleasant feeling of having been sorted out if they are invited to one of two parties given on the same day or even on different days very near together.

First Names for the Clergyman and His Wife?

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be suitable for the young members of the young clergyman's own Sunday school class to call him and his wife by first names?

Answer: Not the clergyman! At least, it would be very lacking in respect to his cloth should his parishioners call their spiritual adviser Tom, Dick or Harry, or whatever his first name. If his wife would like them to call her "Mrs. Post," that would be all right. But that would, if anything, be a husband still further above (Refr. of them).

Plastic Heels Are in the Clear As a Shoe Novelty for Spring

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Fashion Editor)

Plastic heels, which resemble glass, are the newest thing under foot this spring.

They have come to town on open-toed black patent leather sandals and have caused a sensation in the shoe world. The first ones stocked by a Fifth Avenue shop have sold like hot cakes. Lots of time and work have gone into the development of these heels, their attachment to the body of the shoe and to the heel caps. At the top, where they join the shoe, they are honeycombed with holes that give the effect of a stalactite formation. Into some of these holes go the nails, which attach them to the shoe. The rest camouflage the nails so that they do not show and also serve to make driving a nail into a nail hole by machinery easier. (The sole leather is run under them instead of being extended down the front side of the heel as in leather-covered heels.)

Inside them runs a long hollow tunnel equipped with prongs by which the heel cap can be attached. When these wear down, their owner can pry them loose and press on another pair.

The new heels appear on relatively inexpensive black patent leather sandals, designed with open toes and shanks. Some are lined with red kid, others accented with beige or gray suede. They are also to be found on more expensive novelty shoes—green lizard sandals and multicolored brocade evening slippers. Some gold mesh evening shoes have plastic wedge heels.

How well they will wear is a question nobody tries to answer yet. A number of shoe men are enthusiastic about their possibilities. In addition to the clear variety, plastic heels also come in a wide range of colors which can be matched or contrasted with that of the shoe.

Clear plastic heels finish these open-shank sandals of black patent leather and beige suede. Notice the stalactite-like effect produced by the nail holes.

Paint-Stained Rush Chair Seats Can Be Brushed Back To Life

(AP) Feature Service

Rush chair seats, in their natural color, are softly beautiful. They blend well with any other color in a room and they're being shown a great deal in the better furniture shops.

But perhaps you've fallen here to some rush-bottomed chairs that have been painted or varnished.

Maybe you have painted them over yourself—it used to be done, to save wear and tear on the rush. If you'd like to restore them to their natural beauty, don't despair, it can be done.

Be Sure It's Dry

First, tape the chair frame around the rush seats, to protect the wood, then apply a coat of flat white paint to the brush and let it dry at least twenty-four hours. Work the paint well into the rush as you go along, using moderately stiff brush that's not too large. Give it a second coat of the flat white, possibly a third one, to insure a good working surface. This is important, if you want good results. And be sure to let it dry thoroughly each time!

From a tube of burnt umber oil paint squeeze a small quantity into a small jar, with some thinner and mix well. Take a clean brush and wash this color over a small part of a board that is painted white, just to try out the color. If it too dark, add more thinner, until it is just right after polishing.

When your brown mixture is right, wash it over the chair seat, being careful to cover all the white. Work quickly. When the surface is just damp, but not dry, and a light brown in color, take soft silk cloth and polish it, lightly at first, then, as it dries, rubbing well until the surface is smooth.

You Needn't Tell

You will be surprised and delighted with the beautiful color you bring out while rubbing off the surplus paint. It will be a lovely deep cream or light tan, with soft shadings.

If you want to give this finish extra protection, a clear varnish can be applied. Your friends will never suspect that the finish on your chair seats is not the natural rush—and you don't have to tell 'em!

Pianist's Luck Is in the Bag

New York (AP) — Beautifully dressed in gowns designed especially for her, Ania Dorfmann's appearance when she arrived on the concert stage for one of her piano recitals reveals one false note—an old crocodile handbag, worn almost to the point of being disreputable. But that handbag has gone to every recital with her since she made her first public appearance in Vienna, twelve years ago. She believes it brings her luck, because it was presented to her just before her debut.

Morning, afternoon or evening, the bag's there though Madame Dorfmann admits it is unsuitable for evening attire.

"I take the best possible care of it," she says, "so it will last through many more years of my career—and I hope my career will last forever."

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent, and 90 or above is colossal.

MODES of the MOMENT

By ADELAIDE KERR

South America has had a hand in some of the new 1940 accessories. The brown, gray and red seeds that make this necklace and bracelet grew there. Leo Glass assembled them and spiked them with glittering sequins to give zip to a beige jersey sport costume.

Helps for Housewives

Here is a very snappy canapé: Spread toast rounds with chopped hard-cooked eggs mixed with anchovies and moistened slightly with a little lemon juice. Sprinkle lightly with paprika and heat until browned on the top. Serve immediately.

Stuffed peppers, tomatoes and apples keep their shape better if baked in muffin pans or individual baking dishes.

A little salt added to unbeaten egg whites will increase their volume, when beaten. And the beaten whites are less likely to become watery if they're left standing a while before they are used. A speck of salt for each white is plenty.

Jelly omelet is easy to make—and it's often a welcome innovation for lunch or supper. Just before you serve a plain omelet, spread plum or apple jelly over it, then turn it, half over all. It should be served at once, topped with crisp bacon.

When selecting pans for baking biscuits have them no more than an inch deep, less if possible. This allows the biscuits to brown well on all sides when baking.

Laughs abounded from the first rising of the curtain to the last curtain call and most of these were furnished by the Henry Aldrich of the play, Betty Glass in the role of Barbara Pearson, the "girl friend" of Henry, and Catherine Balfie as Catherine Wheeler also played admirable roles.

The scenes were all laid in the office of the principal of "Central High School." Others figured in the main plot of the comedy were William Kelley as the principal, Donald Hicks as the assistant principal and Genevieve Whiteley as the office secretary.

As usual, Miss Tarrant did a uniformly good job of casting. Others taking part were Jean Babcock, Robert Friedman, Warren Ferguson, Janet Service, Jack Johnson, Dorothy Davidson, Natalie Winters, Carmine Sabino, Alice Dunbar, Robert Messinger, Leola Saddlemyre, Theodore Wood, Anna Bronstein, Eleanor Achenbach, Mildred Speiser and William Sawyer.

Infantile Paralysis

It is not definitely known whether poliomyelitis is an ancient or a comparatively new disease. Early Egyptian engravings and mummies revealing deformities have been cited as indications that infantile paralysis may have existed two or three thousand years before Christ. However, the first unquestioned description of this disease was written by Michael Underwood in London in 1784.

A Nervous Worrier?

Redirect Your Energy

Turn "Nerves" into Vitality

On the verge of tears because her husband is a few minutes late! What a prey to worry is the woman with sensitive nerves.

And unless this young wife learns how to control her edginess, worry and "nerves" will continue forming a vicious circle until she faces a breakdown.

Like all nervous people, she needs outlets for the high spirits, the keen imagination she now wastes in transforming trifling mishaps into catastrophes.

How much better, if you're of this type, to devote your valuable energies to an outside interest—social work, amateur theatricals. In the home, too, petty worries, resume their normal proportions when you can turn to a hobby such as weaving or painting!

Perhaps also you need a check-up on your physical health—eye-strain, anemia may cause nerves. Or you may find certain stimulants such as tea or coffee are bad in your case.

Change your jitters into vitality, charm. Our 32-page booklet by a well-known physician explains physical and mental causes for "nerves" gives advice on insomnia, fatigue, nervous indigestion. Includes directions for correct diet, body care.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of OVERCOMING "NERVES" AND EVERY-DAY HEALTH PROBLEMS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Yet the use of the primer makes the job cost no more than any two-coat job because it takes the place of the first coat, and costs exactly the same.

Speaking again of color styling, Ann Herzog will offer interior suggestions in a GUIDEPOST soon. In the meantime be sure to tune in WEAF every Saturday morning at 10:30 to hear Betty Moore describe the decoration of one or two rooms in detail.

Every paint she mentions is found at Herzog's, 332 Wall St., Ph. 252.

Herzog's Guidepost

To better living

"THEY over-trim. All the time. It's the worst fault—"

The snow was coming down fine and steady until it looked like shimmering white gauze outside the window. Inside we stood around and talked about paint. (It's hard to catch the Herzog's not talking about paint at this season). The snow didn't fool anybody. Oh, it was real snow, but everyone knows it can snow one day now, and shine Florida-style the next. And, as soon as people feel that sun, they're here asking for paint.

It was M. H. Herzog himself who led the tirade against over-trimming. You might say it's his pet peeve. The truth is, he hates to see good paint wasted. And when good paint goes on a house, and then the house is so over-trimmed you can't be sure whether it's a house, a gas station, or a camouflaged "pill-box"—well it's sad, isn't it!

If a house has much ornamentation, and you paint and stripe it with your trimming color, sometimes the effect is that of a "frilly" woman. It becomes "fussy" and probably all the good lines and architectural effect of the house are lost.

"On the other hand," said the Benjamin Moore & Co. representative from New York who was here visiting us that day, "sometimes you should paint to deliberately change the lines of a house. I know you're proud of your Kingston architecture, and with good reason, but still you've got some awkward houses around here. But the right kind of painting, I mean selection of colors, can change awkward lines into good ones. You can streamline a figure or a house. You know, if a woman is too large in some places, the right kind of dress designing perfects her figure faults. The right kind of painting job can do the same for a house. We call it "color styling."

Make a note of that, eh?

And when you get ready to paint this Spring, give the Herzog's a call. M. H. Herzog or Ann Herzog will be glad to look at your house, study it, and suggest colors that will show it off to the greatest possible advantage.

(In some future GUIDEPOST we're going to suggest a few color schemes, and the right paint for blinds and trellises. We'll warn against the bad effect of a house painted cream with too much red trimming, and similar combinations good for gas stations because they cause traffic to notice. And we'll suggest you don't paint brick or stone because it's our experience that you'll regret it if you do.)

Lee Osterhoudt entered the conversation by commenting that painting houses white is in favor again, more of it being done right along, and mentioning Moore's Ivory, and Amber White for those who prefer an off-white. His particular enthusiasm, however, is Moorwhite Exterior Primer which has so successfully overcome house painters' old difficulty, a "spotty" job. This primer is urgently recommended not only for new houses, but to go on over old paint as the first coat wherever a two-coat job is planned. A thoroughly good primer and sealer, it absolutely eliminates spottiness, that is, glossy patches here, and flat patches there. Herzog's have seen it used successfully now ever since it was put on the market several years ago.

Yet the use of the primer makes the job cost no more than any two-coat job because it takes the place of the first coat, and costs exactly the same.

'Biscuit, Kayak II Post Favorites

Los Angeles, March 2 (P)—The horse that wasn't supposed to come back is back for another crack at the world's richest racing stake and so today, Seabiscuit makes his third bid for gold and glory in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Off his brilliant run of a week ago, the 'Biscuit and his stablemate, Kayak II, were certain post favorites, possibly odds on, probably not more than even money.

Eight Yankees Are Chosen On All-Star Team for Finns

Tampa, Fla., March 2 (P)—Seven American League players and two National League players were unanimous choices on the All-Star teams, announced today, for the Tampa game dedicated to the Finnish relief fund. Three of them were New York Yankees.

The Yanks placed eight in all on the 25-player A. L. Club, followed by Boston's five, Cincinnati's Red Legs, the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers dominated the National's 20-man squad with four representatives each.

The National's unanimous contributions are outfielders Joe Medwick of St. Louis and Morris Aronovich of Philadelphia. The Americans chosen by all participating baseball writers of major league cities were Pitchers Bobby Feller, Cleveland, and Emil Leonard, Washington; Infielders Jimmy Fox, Boston, and Joe Gordon, New York; Outfielders Joe DiMaggio, New York, and Ted Williams, Boston; and Catcher Bill Dickey, New York.

Manager Bill McKeechne of Cincinnati will pilot the Nationals in the March 17 contest. Manager Joe McCarthy, of the world champion Yankees, will lead the Americans.

Sports Roundup

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, March 2 (P)—You should have seen Col. John Reed Kilpatrick (president of Madison Square Garden) personally giving two gamblers the bum's rush from the hockey game Thursday night. . . . Here's old Jim London starting another farewell tour. . . . And what's this about that nice young fellow, Al Davis, balking at meeting Henry Armstrong? . . . The Maemere Farm stable horses will resume running after the funeral tomorrow of DeWitt Page, the late owner. (But they'll run under a different name for a time). . . . Ernie Lombardi is answering the Florida hecklers by bouncing line drives off the palms right back in the hecklers' kissers, almost.

The Yanks just can't resist taking digs at the National League. . . . When Lefty Grissom reported at St. Pete, Gomez said: "Be nice and quiet now, dimple head. . . . Remember this is your first year in the major leagues." . . . Jack Kearns, who'll be through in Detroit after the Pastor-Burman bout (if it goes on), is considering an offer to move into St. Louis. . . . The national indoor tennis championships which have taken likings at the gate for years, will cut prices next season. . . . Sixty football prospects turned out to greet Jess Neely at Rice and most of 'em were so big they had to stoop to get in the door. . . . Andy K., one of the best of the three-year-olds, is galloping like nobody's business at Belmont Park these early mornings. . . . Ho hum, it took Charlie Retzlaff, the old heavyweight, four heats to stop a wrestler the other night.

Confusion say: Howard V. Millard of Decatur, Ill., bowls 300 consistently and has no time to spare.

over Kingston's Milt Dublin for his steady play. Nissenbaum was one of the most dreaded guards in the league. His All-DUSO mate is Ray Herman of Middletown who copped the position as an underdog. Herman was a vital spark in the 'Middies' rush this season which just fell short when they bowed to Kingston.

Tomorrow afternoon the DUSO Sportswriters' Association will convene in Newburgh to select the official All-DUSO team.

Following are the two teams as selected by Irwin Thomas:

First Team

RF—Harry Flowers (K).
LF—"Yutch" Meadow (L).
C—Ray Lindhorst (K).
RG—Moe Nissenbaum (Mo.).
LG—Ray Herman (Mi.).

Second Team

Millionaire Baseball Ump Jerks Sodas In Spare Time

WILLIAM HAYES: As soda-jerker and umpire

Rochester, N. H.—A million dollar bank account hasn't made a high hat of 22-year-old William Hayes, baseball umpire, soda-jerker "sub," aspirant for a seat in New Hampshire's law-making halls.

Only recently, officials of the Canadian-American baseball league approved his application to umpire in the circuit this year. He proved he could call 'em — and fulfill an almost equally important requirement, the ability to "take it" — in the Piedmont league last year.

Although he is this community's wealthiest young man, Bill works as a soda clerk in a drug store here when it is short-handed. He writes a sports column for a weekly paper. His first love is baseball.

Jeghers Takes Pino's Measure

When Walt Jeghers is "on" he is a tough man to beat. Again last night he proved this by defeating Tony Pino 100 to 74 when Pino was playing his best game of the year. Walt led the way in runs with a cluster of 39, another of 19 and another of 15, while Pino, trying hard to get into the win column, had a 19 run for his best.

The Sunday matinee game will bring together Ed Benoit, whose claim to fame is that he is the only one to defeat Fred Planthaber, the defending champ, and Mike Marchuk, the musical cust.

White Eagles Take Over Soldiers

Last night the White Eagles, playing at home on their Delaware avenue court, defeated Headquarters Battery, 44-29, as Frankie Tatarzewski ran wild to score 19 points.

Wednesday night the Polish eagles will go to the 156th Field Artillery Armory for the second game of their series with the National Guardsmen, who hope to even the standing.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

Fort Myers, Fla.—Rapid Robert Feller is training too fast for Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians.

"He probably needs less work than any man in camp," growled Vitt. "He's always in condition, but he thinks he isn't getting any good out of exercise unless it leaves him dripping wet."

"I'd like to see him keep those extra pounds (Feller weighs 193, three over his playing weight) for July and August."

Tampa, Fla.—A seven-man battle for the Cincinnati Reds' left-field berth started today with an announcement by Manager Bill McKeechne that it would go to the best player.

Vince DiMaggio and Myron McCormick are believed out in front.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Manager Bill Terry took a look at Nick Witek today and endorsed the rookie New York Giant enthusiastically.

"I think we've come up with a real second baseman," he declared. "He's got a second baseman's throw, and I like the way he stands up at the plate and pokes that ball to all fields."

Avalon, Calif.—Outfielder Augie Galan was to sign his Chicago Cubs contract today after a chat with Manager Gabby Hartnett, leaving only Dizzy Dean and Hank Leiber as holdouts. Both were reported asking $5,000 above the club's best offer.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—You might think the New York Yankees would be satisfied with Babe Dahlgren at first base. He is one of the flashiest fielders in the game and batted in 89 runs last year. The champs could afford to carry a light hitter, if any club could.

But Manager Joe McCarthy is giving a lot of attention to Johnny Sturm, a first sacker up from Kansas City. In addition, McCarthy has disclosed that Mike Chartak, Newark farm outfielder, would be tried at first.

San Antonio, Tex.—The training season rarely has started and the St. Louis Browns already have two casualties—which everybody hopes isn't an omen. Rookie Loy Hanning sprained an ankle, and pitcher Bob Harris has grip.

Clearwater, Fla.—Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers is a bench manager these days because he has a swelling in the elbow of his right arm—but "I'll be out there when the gong sounds," he insists.

Bradenton, Fla.—Casey Stengel ordered the Boston Bees into a nine-inning practice game today with Tom Earley and a cast of rookies doing the pitching. Barred by town ordinance from practice on Sundays, the Bees are working out twice on week-ends and golfing on the Sabbath.

Four-Ball Tourney At Coral Gables

Coral Gables, Fla., March 2 (P)—Headed by the confident but cautious titleholders, Ralph Guldahl and Sammy Snead, 16 hand-picked teams will set out tomorrow in quest of the $5,000 international four-ball golf championship, the most colorful fixtures in the country.

Seventeen years old, the tournament offers the teams of two players each 36 holes of gruelling match play each day, at the end of which the field will be reduced to half. The two semi-final teams will battle it out for the championship Thursday, the winner receiving top prize, $2,000.

Hard Water Problems

The most universal of all water problems is hardness—the presence of lime and magnesium. Chemists and persons who have made a study of water content say that an insoluble curd is formed when soap unites with the lime in hard water. This curd, which appears as sticky scum in dishwater, causes considerable soap waste, as it eliminates that much soap from the cleaning process. It has been estimated that in real hard water as much as 90 per cent of all soap used is wasted.

Hard water, in addition to being wasteful of soap, makes drinking water cloudy and discolored and often affects its taste, discolors fixtures, causes dull glassware, clogs and enlarges skin pores and makes fabrics brittle.

Weber, 60 West Chestnut street, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. Paul M. Young, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, officiating. It was largely attended. The casket was surrounded by numerous floral pieces from his relatives and many friends. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock a delegation of the American Legion led by Commander John Melville and Eugene B. Carey visited the residence and members of the Elks, led by Exalted Ruler William Rothery, also called. The casket bearers were Peter Keresman, John Partlan, Sam Mann, Albert Vogel, Adam Salzman and Claude Markle. A firing squad under the command of Al Singer acted as honorary escort, and consisted of the following: John Scully, Clifford Little, Harry Kolls, Roy Jacob, Jacob Camp, William Duffy and Herman O. Schwenk Says City Trying To Meet Amendment Proviso

LATE BULLETIN

Brussels, March 2 (AP)—The Belgian government announced today that a Belgian plane had been shot down in an air fight between a number of German and Belgian planes over Belgian territory.

"A Belgian plane was shot down this afternoon during a battle between Belgian planes and German planes," said a brief communique. "Another communique will be issued tonight."

Earlier reports from the frontier region said the Belgian plane crashed near Bastogne, three miles from the Belgian-Luxembourg border, and its occupants were burned to death.

Welles to Talk With Goering

Berlin, March 2 (AP)—An authoritative source said today United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles was expected to visit tomorrow with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and later to confer with Rudolf Hess, deputy Nazi party leader.

President Roosevelt's fact-finder, who conferred with Adolf Hitler today, is scheduled to leave Berlin shortly after 7 p. m. (1 p. m. E. S. T.) tomorrow, it was said. It was understood the suggestion for a Hess-Welles meeting came from the German side. Presumably it would be looked upon as a special courtesy by the Nazi party upon whose support Hitler primarily relies all his decisions.

Wife and Children,

Monday evening an informal conference will be held by the common council with representatives of the police and fire pension systems of the city to give the police and firemen an opportunity to tell their side of the pension story.

The conference will not be open to the public. Acting Mayor John J. Schwenk today called attention to the communication the council had received from the police asking that they be allowed to meet with the council and tell their side of the story before the council took any action on the local laws that have been introduced in the council.

Acting Mayor Schwenk said that no mention is made in the communication from the police asking for a public hearing, and that the request made by the police has been granted in every respect by the council.

All that the police asked was to hold a meeting with the aldermen to discuss the proposed new pension laws.

"Commenting on proposed changes in the police and fire pension systems of the city, Acting Mayor Schwenk said today: 'The state constitutional amendment that takes effect July 1, 1940, provides that from that time any pension system then existing will become a contractual obligation of the city. 'This new amendment to the state constitution will have to be interpreted by the courts. No one knows at the present time what effect it will have upon the finances of the city, but the proposed amendments to the present city pension systems is an attempt to meet any obligation that might arise out of this amendment to the state constitution.'

"This amendment provides also that after July 1, 1940, the benefits of any existing pension system cannot be diminished or impaired after that time, since a contractual obligation will exist the payments required from members of the systems cannot be increased.

"The proposed amendment to our local pension systems is an attempt to provide protection to the taxpayers against future liabilities for past and future obligations to the pension fund by reason of this constitutional change.

"However, there is nothing in the constitution to prevent the city from increasing the benefits or decreasing the sums payable by the members of the pension systems if such a course should become feasible after the courts have interpreted the constitutional amendment.

"Therefore it is quite apparent that if the cost to the city of any pension system is increased it will be wholly due to the new constitutional requirements which the city must comply with."

Invention of Gunpowder Still Remains a Mystery

There is a large place reserved in world history for the man who invented gunpowder—but no historian can be certain of this inventor's identity.

Perhaps no chemical invention or discovery has affected the course of history to a greater degree than has gunpowder. Dr. Ralph E. Oesper, associate professor of analytical chemistry at the University of Cincinnati, has been making a study of its origin.

Dr. Oesper said that Berthold Schwarz, a German monk, and Friar Roger Bacon have been associated with the invention, although the Bacon claim has been upheld solely in England.

His studies have led Dr. Oesper to the conclusion that Schwarz—if he really existed at all—invented firearms about 1250 at Freiburg, Germany.

"No contemporary documents or accounts dealing with Schwarz are known and those who contend that he never existed may be correct, but at least tradition, which usually has an historical basis, justified the monument to his memory in Freiburg," Dr. Oesper explains.

The earliest version, taken from a Freiburg manuscript of 1432, has Schwarz seeking a tincture for gilding metals, mixing saltpeter, sulfur, lead, and oil in a tight copper pot, and prompted by the resultant explosion to experiment further.

"Why are there no contemporary records?" Dr. Oesper asked. "If Berthold Schwarz is a purely legendary inventor, the answer is obvious. However, history may have taken no interest in his doings because guns were said to be execrable inventions and their employment was decreed as destructive to manly valor and unworthy of an honorable warrior."

"Schwarz was reputed to have compounded powder with Satan's blessing, and the clergy preached that as a co-worker of the evil one, he was a renegade to his profession and his name should be forgotten.

There was no reference to the Chinese claim to the invention of gunpowder in Dr. Oesper's report.

Injured in Fall

Mrs. Jasper Kelder of 194 Tremper avenue was injured Tuesday evening when she slipped on the ice at the intersection of Broadway and Cornell street. She was removed to the Kingston Hospital in a taxi. There X-rays showed a dislocation and split pelvis of the left shoulder. After having the shoulder set she was removed to her home, where her condition is reported as somewhat improved.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to our relatives and friends, Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., and their employees, the Home Department of Bethlehem Chapel, and to all, for their beautiful flowers and kind expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement.

Utilities Sag as Holding Houses' Action Is Started

The S. E. C. yesterday issued its third show cause order under its announced program to begin action against utility holding companies under the "death sentence" clause of the Act of 1935. It was against Middle West Corp. and was similar to those already issued against Electric Bond & Share and Engineers Public Service. At the same time Philadelphia Electric Co. abandoned a $15,000,000 financing operation, indicated reason being the S. E. C.'s critical attitude toward the company's depreciation policy.

The Middle West order was issued after the close of the market, which saw utility stocks generally sag and, with a quarter of the days transactions of 620,000 shares representing utility issues, lose 47 point in the Dow-Jones averages, to close at 241.7, a low for the year. Although the intention of the S. E. C. to proceed with integration proceedings against the great utility corporations has been well advertised and although it is understood that such proceedings will be long drawn out and management of the companies indicated that cooperation will be given only if the rights of investors are protected, the market yesterday indicated that not only is the public becoming skeptical of the entire utility program, so far as investment is concerned, but that effect of the action of the S. E. C. had not been fully discounted.

Led by the utilities stocks generally slid further downward Friday, the industrial averages losing 31 point, to close at 146.23 and rails declining .07, to 30.41. With volume highest for the week so far 26 issues registered new highs for the year and 42 made new lows.

Commodity markets turned lower, with the index showing the largest loss since the middle of February, grains leading the reaction. Under renewed selling wheat futures dropped as much as 2½ cents a bushel, new crop wheat 26 cents, old crop 24 cents. Pressure of Bombay and Liverpool selling forced cotton prices down 11 to 16 points.

Featuring net earnings reports for 1939, made public yesterday by the 49 per cent gain net income shown by General Electric. Net for 1939 was $41,236,000, equal to $1.43 a common share, which compares with net in 1938 of $27,729,329, or 96 cents a share. In 1937 the company had net of $63,546,762, or $2.21 a share. Directors have declared a dividend of 35 cents on common, vs. 25 cents paid the same time last year.

Other net earnings reports included: R.C.A., $8,082,811, vs. $7,412,072 in 1938. J. C. Penney, $16,481,312, $6.48 a share, vs. $13,739,160, or $5.40 a share. Electric Storage Battery, $1,820,661, vs. $948,831, J. C. Newberry, $2,325,108, or $3.14 a share, vs. $1,792,742, $4.04 a share. Vanadium Corp., $1,224,450, $3.25 a share, vs. $231,314, or 61 cents a share.

Federal Reserve reports estimate that department store sales throughout the country were five per cent larger during the week ended February 24 than for the same week a year ago. Gain the previous week had been two per cent over 1939. In the New York district the gain was 0.5 per cent over the 1939 period, which however was better than in the week ending February 17 when a decrease of 7.9 per cent was indicated.

Senator Taft, Republican presidential candidate, in one of his most direct attacks to date, said that the nation's economic troubles "have resulted from the theory which dominates the New Deal, a planned economy in a regulated state." He asserted that the "sympathy for Communist ideals" which dominate many government bureaus is leading to "more and more regulation of business and taxation of success," is discouraging new enterprise and destroying or checking the growth of existing businesses.

Lure of Orange Grove

The first great wish of the greatest number of people on their first visit to Florida is to get into an orange grove. If they enter the state by the east coast, the old Garnett grove on San Marco avenue, St. Augustine, is the earliest opportunity they have to gratify that desire.

No matter how many bearing potted orange trees are cultivated in greenhouses, or how attractive are the orange grove exhibits in great expositions in the North, they do not completely satisfy the hope of some time walking in a grove with trees growing, out under the sky, among rows and rows of glossy-leaved trees. Indeed, it is believed that Northern fair orange-tree displays increase the general desire to meet the orange groves of Florida.
